RICH SURFACE LEDGE CUT ON INSPIRATION

Max Herman is storm-bound in Tonopah. This is not due to the state of roads around the county seat, but the fact that it is impossible for him to get through to his home in McGill owing to the presence of nearly three feet of snow on the Elly summit. However, Mr. Herman is putting in his time to good advantage arranging for a more leisurely campaign on the Arrowhead Inspiration which is holding out prospects of becoming one of the earliest and best shippers in the district. The Inspiration is operated through a tunnel which stopped at 55 feet but, in view of developments, a contract will be let for another 25 feet extension of the tunnel. This is expected to put the mine directly under the main ledge where there is every reason to look for the rich ore. Four men have been trenching and sinking prospect holes on the surface with excellent results. In one of the holes which was down 11 feet a ledge was uncovered with high values carried in sulphuric acid and chloride in a fine quartz associated with other minerals of value. President Herman thinks enough of this find to place a contract for sinking from 55 to 100 feet.

On his return to camp Mr. Herman expects to establish a permanent camp at the Inspiration where he will move in several substantial buildings to furnish more comfortable living quarters for his men. This will be done as soon as the roads permit as the motor trucks cannot carry heavy loads for a week or two days. Mr. Herman will leave for his home in McGill as soon as the road is broken through the summit and before the end of April he says he will have a good equipment on the Inspiration.
